

BUNNIES EAT HAY

Bunnies love hay. It is an essential part of their diet. The managers of the Rescue have bales of hay available for volunteers to access.

Hay is expensive, so be sure to use good judgement to minimize waste when taking hay from the bales to place in the bunny bins. When replenishing hay for bunnies to eat, please follow the steps below:

1. Empty the hay bin which usually has hay from previous feedings. Bunnies use their hay bin as a litter box. Volunteers need to empty the bin and clean it out below placing new hay in the bin.
2. Wash the bin thoroughly in a designated location, usually outside, with a mild detergent ensuring to remove any debris, urine, or fecal droppings from the bin.
3. Replenish the hay from a fresh bale. Bunnies can be very choosy about their hay. Be sure to get advice from Katie regarding which hay to use.
4. Ensure that the area around the place where the hay bin sits is clean and dry.
5. Replace the hay bin in the bunny pen.
